UK-India Joint Statement 2015

A joint statement between the UK and India following Prime Minister Modi and Prime Minister Cameron's meeting in London in November 2015.

"Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Prime Minister David Cameron met in London on 12-13 November. The two Prime Ministers celebrated the growing strength, breadth and depth of the relations between the two countries…

The two Prime Ministers announced that 2016 would be the UK-India year of Education, Research and Innovation. This will highlight the strengths of the bilateral relationship, drive further collaboration, including a range of digital technology enabled education and training initiatives, so that both countries create a new 21st century framework as partners in education, research and innovation partners, in the global context…

The Prime Ministers announced that UK will be the partner country for the 2016 Technology Summit in Delhi."
